The Rushgroves
Perfectly positioned
Thoughtfully designed
Positively developed
Welcome to The Rushgroves, a collection of just 387 homes from leading residential developer, L&Q. The plan’s restrained scale and architectural attention to design gives homes here an unmistakable quality built to last.

These homes are rooted in an established area with a rich history. Together with advantageous transport links and the £6 billion in local private investment pouring into the area, this makes The Rushgroves a clever investment for any homebuyer thinking of the future.
Perfectly positioned
Thoughtfully designed
Positively developed
The Rushgroves is perfectly positioned in a part of London that’s characterful, accessible — and seeing investment in its future like never before.
This is an area with roots, and all the benefits that come with that. Enviable transport links and settled communities have made it popular for generations. Now unprecedented levels of investment means the area is starting to bloom; it’s time to become a part of it.

The Hyde, where The Rushgroves is located, dates back to the mid-16th century, later forming part of the historic suburb of Hendon. Hendon’s early connection with the railways in the 1860s made it one of London’s original suburbs — and it became one of its best-connected satellite areas with the introduction of the Northern line in the 1900s. Such early establishment means that while Hendon is located close to the city centre, it has settled communities and ingrained identity. These leafy streets of Hendon are home to families and people from wildly different backgrounds, bound to the place by its unique sense of sanctuary from the city.

Not since the arrival of the railways and underground has this part of London experienced such radical change. The local area is seeing a massive £6 billion in private investment. Regeneration across Barnet is being channelled to deliver positive change for everyone living in the borough. That means new jobs, new homes, new green spaces, new schools and colleges, new community hubs, a new mainline station and bus interchange at Brent Cross — and the demolition of inadequate housing across the area. On top of this, there are plans for the £1.4 billion redevelopment of Brent Cross London, transforming the centre into a world-class shopping and leisure destination.

This is the right place, at the right time.
Perfectly positioned for city dashes, business trips, overseas travel and local delights.

The Rushgroves is ideally situated for travel to the city — and the rest of the UK. Plentiful and wide-reaching transport links enrich this area, while TfL and Barnet Council are committed to stepped-up investment in local infrastructure. Two Northern Line stations, Hendon Central and Colindale, are within walking distance, and are part of TfL’s Night Tube — offering all-night services on Fridays and Saturdays. While nearby Hendon is a ThamesLink station, with speedy 24/7 services into Central London, as well as to Luton and Gatwick airports.

The Rushgroves also benefits from excellent road links, sitting close to the M1, the A41 and the North Circular, with easy access to the whole UK, whether for work or pleasure. With 318 secure underground car parking spaces — and one in five spaces fitted with electric car chargers — residents will find the length and breadth of the country easier to access than ever before.

Get to St Pancras from Hendon ThamesLink in 16 minutes. From there it’s only 7 hours, 35 minutes to Paris, or on to Amsterdam.

Major UK business centres like Birmingham, Milton Keynes and Reading are all within convenient reach via rail and nearby roads like the M25 and M1.

The Rushgroves benefits from prime access to three major London airports: Luton, Gatwick and Heathrow.

London’s galleries, theatres, museums and entertainment are all just a quick train or tube ride away.
Transport links may be excellent, but there’s plenty to do on your doorstep. Living in Hendon is not just about access to and from the city. The area’s long-established suburban heritage means there are amenities and community assets you wouldn’t get in Central London. A key attraction is the nearby ‘Welsh Harp’ or Brent Reservoir, providing facilities for sailing, canoeing and bird watching.

Following its £1.4 billion refurbishment, Brent Cross Shopping Centre will soon provide a superior retail experience. While the nearby Wembley Stadium and Allianz Park play host to top-tier football, rugby union, gigs and events. There’s local football too, with Hendon FC playing in Silver Jubilee Park, a 15-minute walk away.

The bustling streets of Hendon — rich with cafes, shops and restaurants to satisfy any Sunday morning — are only a few minutes walk away. For closer convenience there’s a large Sainsbury’s on your doorstep, too. Up the road towards Colindale are some excellent cafes and Asian restaurants, among them the pilgrimage site for East Asian street food, Bang Bang Oriental.

The Hendon Aerodrome was a key site in the history of flight. Today the RAF Museum uses the hangars of the original aerodrome to house its impressive collection of aircraft.

The Brent Reservoir (or ‘Welsh Harp’ as it’s known locally) offers opportunities for scenic walks, and a wide range of outdoor leisure activities.

Nearby education offers great options from first steps to adulthood. The Hyde School’s ‘Outstanding’ primary is on your doorstep while nearby Middlesex University is a short bus ride away.

The heart of The Rushgroves will be a piazza of commercial units, creating a relaxed hub for eating, drinking and convenience shopping.

Some local flavour

Living in The Rushgroves gives you easy access to attractions in the city and beyond. But what about closer to home? Take a journey through some local highlights that give you a flavour of what you can do on your doorstep.

1. Broadway Bikes
   Nestled among the hustle and bustle of The Hyde is Broadway Bikes, where owner Adrian provides for all two-wheeled needs—speedy expertise at good value.

2. Welsh Harp
   Sailing, canoeing, windsurfing, allotments, walking and bird watching—the Welsh Harp has a lot going for it. The Sea Cadets is a local treasure for kids.

3. RAF Museum
   Fly back to bygone times at the former Hendon Aerodrome. The museum has just reopened after a £23 million refit and is looking better than ever.

4. Vivian Avenue
   A great nearby ‘strip’. Try a bagel at Noshers, where they smoke their own salmon, then chase it up with a coffee at local favourite Carpe Diem.

5. Barnet Community Garden
   Home to the much sought after West Hendon Allotments (there is a waiting list), volunteers and visitors are welcome at this buzzing community garden.

6. Brent Cross Shopping Centre
   Undergoing a £1.4 billion redevelopment, Brent Cross will soon have 200 more shops, 40 more restaurants, a cinema and an hotel.

7. Hendon FC
   Playing in the Southern League Premier South, Hendon FC is owned by a supporters trust. Step back in time on their terraces...

8. Angels ‘The Costumiers’
   Angels in Hendon is also home to the largest collection of costume for film, theatre and television in the world—don’t miss their ‘Behind the Seams’ tours.

9. The ‘Neasden Temple’
   BAPS Shri Swaminarayan Mandir is a sanctuary of Hindu worship worth visiting for the cultural, charitable and artistic events it plays host to—everybody is welcome.

10. Bang Bang Oriental
   Described by The Observer’s Jay Rayner as the ‘Now That’s What I Call Music! of Asian dining’, Bang Bang Oriental is destination dining, a mere fifteen minutes’ walk away.
The Rushgroves is thoughtfully designed to reflect the lives of its residents—meaning fewer homes, higher build quality and more responsive architecture.
Designed by award-winning architects Rolfe Judd, this development has been conceived with you in mind: its environments have been carefully considered from every angle to make the most of the site for its residents.

Its size and population density has been specifically planned to integrate with the local area in as short a time as possible. While the development takes as its inspiration the local waterways of the area, the Silver Stream and the Welsh Harp, giving the scheme a unique flow and sense of fluidity.

Across The Rushgroves, from studios to four-bedroom apartments, and communal spaces in between, the development’s design revolves around principles that are responsive to residents’ needs, the surrounding environment and the demands of the future.

A responsive design vision

Built with a vision to complement the local area — as well as enhance residents’ lives and foster social cohesion — life in The Rushgroves will be gently shaped by its responsive, people-focused architecture.

The development reflects local waterways. Lightweight building forms mimic the floating reed beds of the Welsh Harp, while the ‘fins’ that slide into place on the buildings’ facades emulate the blades of the reeds.

Perfectly proportioned, the development’s design works sympathetically with its surroundings and promotes a sense of community for its residents.
Great consideration has been given to making The Rushgroves an attractive place to live – and ensuring the local cityscape benefits from its development. Central aspects of the development elevate views over the communal gardens and walkways while still allowing high levels of sunlight into the area. This inward-looking focus is balanced with sympathetic attitude to the surrounding area, with building heights and style finely tuned for maximum integration. Its buildings have been planned to be individual, yet work together cohesively. While the modest 387 domestic homes don’t just mean the development will feel on more of a human scale, they ensure that the development is a carefully considered imprint on the environment that will be completed all the quicker for it.

The Rushgroves’ architecture fits the needs of people, not planners.
Building for the future

Forward-thinking practice has been central to how The Rushgroves has been planned and developed. From energy to transport — even to how the apartments are insulated — one eye has always been kept on the future, allowing the development to be as green, efficient and flexible as it can be.

The Rushgroves is positively developed by people who have a responsibility to build and maintain quality homes for everyone to live in; it’s that simple.
Founded in 1963, we are a residential developer born from the belief that homes matter for everyone.

Today we are also a leading provider of private sale apartments, combining our social purpose with commercial drive to create homes and neighbourhoods everyone can be proud of.

L&Q houses around 250,000 people in more than 92,000 homes, primarily across London and the South East.

Our vision is for everyone to have a quality home they can afford. It’s a vision shaped by our people, our partners — but most of all by our residents.
Development for people

What our residents need and want from their future homes has been front and centre of The Rushgroves’ planning and design.

Extensive cycle parking and car club spaces reflect growing transport trends, while best-practice sustainability plays back a growing interest among our residents in improving their green credentials.

Above all, L&Q acknowledges that as a developer we have a responsibility to make The Rushgroves work as a ‘place’. This has meant working with local people to ensure it is as integrated into the locale as can be—architecturally and socially.

Buying and beyond

Becoming a Rushgroves resident is just the beginning of a relationship with L&Q that works for you. We know trusting your seller is essential to feeling safe and happy in your new home. Which is why we aim to be as clear as possible on things like maintenance, safety, responsiveness and future reinvestment.

The process can seem complex, but we’ll help you through the different stages required to get you into your new home: reservation, arrangement of mortgage for most buyers, the appointment of solicitors who will arrange exchange of contracts and deposits and finally completion.

After legal completion your property benefits from a ten-year warranty; the first two years of which are covered by us. Your After Care Team will be on hand to assist with any issues that may arise. You will be contacted after you legally complete (normally around seven days after) to confirm that you are happy with your home. Your sales associate can provide you with more details on the L&Q Guarantee and the NHBC Buildmark cover.

Different ways to buy

There are three ways to buy your apartment at The Rushgroves. Whether it’s private sale, Help to Buy or Shared Ownership, we’ll be there to talk over your options, and guide you through the steps. Different blocks at The Rushgroves are available to different types of buyer.

Private sale

If you are able to raise the full deposit (usually 10%) for the apartment and arrange the rest through a mortgage, private sale is the option for you. It means that you’ll own the flat and just be paying back on the mortgage.

Help to Buy

The Help to Buy scheme allows buyers to get on the housing ladder in new-build developments with a Government-backed equity loan. In Greater London the loan makes up 40% of the price, with the buyer providing a deposit of 5%. The rest (55%) is covered by a mortgage. You’ll pay back the mortgage and the loan, owning more and more of the property as you repay.

Shared Ownership

Shared Ownership allows you to purchase a share of your home—usually between 25% and 75%. You will pay a mortgage on the share you own, and a below-market-value rent on the remainder to L&Q. With time you can buy a larger stake in the home from L&Q. There is a maximum household income cap for Shared Ownership of £60,000 in Greater London.

Building the future

Our residents have always been at the heart of what we do. This goes right to the top of our management structure, with residents represented on the Group Board.

£250 million has been allocated to the L&Q Foundation and our new L&Q Academy that will go towards strengthening communities—providing opportunities and encouraging qualifications for our residents.

Our care and support branch, L&Q Living, will also provide increasing numbers of older and vulnerable people with the housing and support they need to live as independently as possible.

And we’re doing our bit to tackle the housing crisis, building 100,000 new homes in the next ten years. At least 50% of these new homes will be for social housing, with a target of 60% in London.

We want to help our residents live independently and contribute towards successful communities. That’s what we mean by positively developed.

Jonathan was looking for properties in his area available for buyers unable to buy through private purchase. He found Acton Gardens from L&Q and applied online; the rest is history.

It was a really easy process and such a quick turnaround; I looked around the show home on Saturday, chose which apartments I was interested in on Monday, and within under two weeks I’d heard that I had met the eligibility criteria and secured an apartment! The sales team were helpful— they explained the whole process and talked me through everything step by step. Now I’m living in my own home!”

Jonathan rented in London for six years, but at 29 decided he was ready to buy a place of his own.
